

Saks launches new spring colors during Beauty Week

I have no idea what black truffle is, but I want some.

Add a dash of black currant, some fruit and noir gourmand? Heaven.

It's not a new dish at Wild Fork. Yet. Kim, Julie — thoughts? Anyway, it's Black Orchid, hot, hot, hot designer Tom Ford's first fragrance.

After popping into Saks Fifth Avenue recently, I said hi to Pat, the store's Siren of Scents, who spritzed me with a smidge of Black Orchid — love it.

Fall in love with it, or any number of new things in bloom during Beauty Week at Saks, which runs Thursday through March 10.

With the theme of "Isn't It Romantic?" Saks will kick off spring with new colors and products, cosmetics manager Julie Hink told me.

Talented makeup artists will be in the store offering personal advice and expertise, one-on-one consultations, makeovers and more. Bobbi Brown's national team, for example, will be at Saks, and they're taking appointments now — better hurry, though.

Plus, most counters will have gifts with purchase — and I know y'all love gifts.

Things to look for: The new scent from Bill Blass, a Saks exclusive — fabulous bottle; Diorshow mascara for dramatic lashes; La Prairie's nourishing eye cream to combat dehydration and prevent aging; Laura Mercier's Lip Glace.

And, finally, Ford's Black Orchid, with top notes of black truffle, ylang, bergamot and black currant; middle notes including florals, fruit and lotus wood; and base notes of noir gourmand, patchouli, incense and vetiver. Prices are $90 for 1.7 ounces, $135 for 3.4 ounces.

For more info, call Saks at 744-0200.

Academy Award-winning window

Love me some ranch and Caesar, but my favorite dressing is window.

fashion flash

Have you been by Miss Jackson's lately? Do a drive-by because there's some Oscar-themed eye candy on display, thanks to local floral design maestro Talmadge Powell.

One window features a black Nicole Bakti backless gown with rhinestone spaghetti straps, plus a red Swarovski crystal compact clutch with gold accents.

The center window has a delicious apple satin Niteline gown (shown here) with X-back, green-beaded straps and V-neck with beaded bodice. The flowers Talmadge used were flame tulips, green orchids, Oklahoma dogwood and lily grass.

The third window has a black and nude Sue Wong cocktail dress with black-beaded straps and handkerchief pleats in a '20s flapper style. Jewelry designer Delight Van Dame designed the hand-knotted black onyx necklace with gold and crystal circular clasp, and the ornate black and gold beaded clutch with gold strap is by Santi.

So here's your itinerary: Order the quiche at Queenie's, then stroll by Miss Jackson's. Need gorgeous flowers? Call Talmadge, 582-0359.

Stylish goings on

Coldwater Creek at Woodland Hills is lending a hand to Komen Tulsa — thanks, in part, to you.

If you visit the store now through Thursday and try on anything you like, Coldwater Creek will donate $1 per customer to Komen Tulsa. They're a national sponsor for the Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure, by the way.

And get this: There's absolutely no purchase necessary. So swing by the store and try some stuff on — you'll probably find something you wanna buy, too.

Everything's brand new for spring, assistant manager Kim Andersen told me. Plenty of colors, lots of brights — "pretty much an eclectic mix, something for everyone."

Need more info? Call 307-1821.

J. Spencer will host the spring trunk show of Ayala Bar jewelry this week at both its Tulsa locations.

"Each one is a work of art," said Julie Spencer — the "J" in J. Spencer. Love her. Anyway, the colors are soft and earthy, as well as bold and bright. Ayala used pewter and sand tones, plus beautiful oceanic blues

Thursday and Friday.

Dream curls

My favorite song to sing in bed before work is Jennifer Hudson's brilliant rendition of "And I Am Telling You I'm Not Going" from "Dreamgirls." I end up going anyway, though.

Miss Hudson, as you may have noticed, is on this month's Vogue cover with a gorgeous, free-flowing mane. And you can achieve the look, thanks to Pantene.

The beauty of this relaxed but camera-ready look is in her big, loose curls and its movement. Start with a moisturizing shampoo and conditioner to help hair stand up to the heat and hold of styling. Pantene's Relaxed & Natural collection is formulated with essential oils to gently cleanse, while fortifying the hair and locking in moisture.

After drying hair smooth, use a large barrel curling iron to create the shape.

Curl hair in one-inch loose sections, allowing the curl to fully set. After curling the entire head, loosely pull curls down and finger comb back, away from the face, to create an easy bouncy style.

Use just a drop of smoothing serum to seal in the curl and tame any fly-aways. Suggestion: Pantene's Smooth and Shine serum, which adds shine without weighing hair down, providing easy movement and body.

Pantene's Relaxed & Natural shampoo and conditioner (about $3.99 each) can be found in local drug and grocery stores.
